PARRILLADA DE MARISCOS

(Feeds Four People)

This unique, yet classic dish is popular in the coastal regions of Mexico served with tostada shells and created with a combination of these four delightful dishes. 64

- Savory tilapia fillet, seasoned in special spices and grilled to perfection
- Camarones al mojo de ajo (large savory shrimp, mushrooms and onion sautéed and served in a garlic and butter sauce)
- Camarones a la diablo (large savory shrimp sautéed and served in a slightly spicy chipotle sauce)
- Ceviche (bite size morsels of shrimp, red onion, cilantro, cucumber and carrots marinated in fresh squeezed lime juice)

MOLCAJETE DE MARISCOS

A Molcajete is a stone tool used by pre-Hispanic Mesoamerican cultures, including the Aztec and Maya; stretching back several thousand years, and likely evolved from the more primitive metate grinding slab.

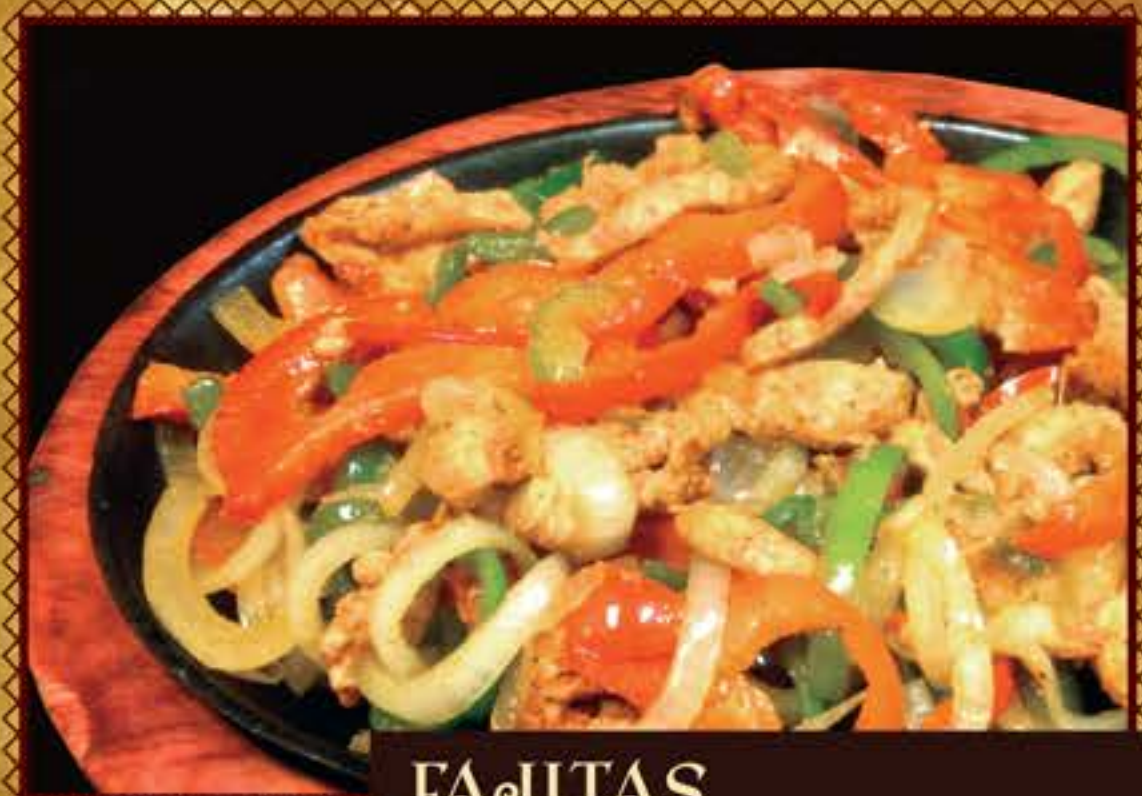

The traditional Mexican version of the mortar and pestle tool is made of basalt stone and is used to crush, grind and mix food products such as spices and also to prepare authentic Mexican salsas and guacamole.

Currently, a molcajete can also be used as serving dishes in restaurants and homes. While recipes are usually not stewed or otherwise cooked in them, the molcajete stays hot for a very long time after serving.

Fajitas

This classic Mexican dish is served grilled and sizzling hot with sautéed tomato, onion and bell pepper with your choice of Chicken, Steak or Pork. Served with rice, beans, sour cream, guacamole and tortillas.
